The Atlantic Slave Trade from West Central Africa, 1780-1867, traces the inland origins of slaves leaving West Central Africa at the peak period of the transatlantic slave trade. Drawing on archival sources from Angola, Brazil, England, and Portugal, Daniel B. Domingues da Silva explores not only the origins of the slaves forced into the trade but also the commodities for which they were exchanged and their methods of enslavement. Further, the book examines the evolution of the trade over time, its organization, the demographic profile of the population transported, the enslavers' motivations to participate in this activity, and the Africans' experience of enslavement and transportation across the Atlantic. Domingues da Silva also offers a detailed 'geography of enslavement', including information on the homelands of the enslaved Africans and their destination in the Americas.

Como outras tantas "totalidades históricas", a Época Pombalina é uma "construção histórica", qualidade previamente ressaltada pelos organizadores. Assim, à luz anunciadora de um período, o livro contempla realidades de um vasto império da Época Moderna. Sua relevância consiste no fato de se tratar de uma obra organizada e publicada no Brasil, caracterizada por um enfoque múltiplo que vai da história econômica à nova história política, passando pela história cultural e outros campos da história, abrangendo uma variedade de temas, muitos dos quais já classicamente abordados nos estudos pombalinos.

This special issue of the Portuguese Studies Review presents studies that explore the themes of family, property, the colonial elite, administration and power, war (naval combat, fortifications), sugar-planting, religion and the construction of colonial and indigenous identities, as well as trans-Atlantic commerce and slavery. The collection features contributions by Ângelo Emílio da Silva Pessoa, Regina Célia Gonçalves, Mozart Vergetti de Menezes, Acácio José Lopes Catarino, Carla Mary S. Oliveira, José Maurício Saldanha Alvarez, Bruno Romero Ferreira Miranda, Kalina Vanderlei Silva, Suely Creusa Cordeiro de Almeida, Maria Emilia Monteiro Porto, Mark Meuwese, and Solange Pereira da Rocha.
