The Blue Djinn of Babylon - Wikipedia

The Blue Djinn wants Philippa to be her heir; the longer Philippa stays in the Blue Djinn’s magical home, the more cold-hearted and logical she becomes. Now John must travel a dangerous road to Babylon in modern-day, war-torn Iraq to rescue his sister. With this second book in the Children of the Lamp series, P.B. Kerr has demonstrated that the series has what it takes to become a children’s classic. The children are immensely likeable, as are their parents.

Theodosia Throckmorton has her hands full at the Museum of Legends and Antiquities in London. Her father may be head curator, but it is Theo—and only Theo—who is able to see all the black magic and ancient curses that still cling to the artifacts in the museum. Sneaking behind her father ’ s back, Theo uses old, nearly forgotten Egyptian magic to remove the curses and protect her father and the rest of the museum employees from the ancient, sinister forces that lurk in the museum ’ s dark hallways.

When a young girl ventures through a hidden door, she finds another life with shocking similarities to her own. Coraline has moved to a new house with her parents and she is fascinated by the fact that their 'house' is in fact only half a house! Divided into flats years before, there is a brick wall behind a door where once there was a corridor. One day it is a corridor again and the intrepid Coraline wanders down it. And so a nightmare-ish mystery begins that takes Coraline into the arms of counterfeit parents and a life that isn't quite right. Can Coraline get out? Can she find her real parents? Will life ever be the same again?
